

Dad's Toolkit

6-12 Months

Sometimes as a dad you may feel awkward, but as your baby grows you will develop a very special relationship.

Dad, you play a unique role in the way your baby grows. You encourage your children to think differently which will help them in school and beyond!

Dad's do it differently (and that's a good thing!)

- ♥ Moms and dads have different ways of handling babies. They have their own unique styles.
- ♥ Differences in holding and playing with your baby have a positive influence on brain development.
- ♥ Differences can result in better coordination, which can help in physical development and sporting skills.
- ♥ Dad's involvement is important in the development of bonding.

Bonding with Baby

- ★ Take a walk – There are healthy benefits for both of you!
- ★ Dance – Put on some music and dance around the room with your little one.
- ★ Set a table for two – Have breakfast or lunch together.
- ★ Encourage exploration – From a rough beard to a silky moustache to a crew cut—little fingers love learning about you and their world!
- ★ Repetitive sounds – Da-da, ma-ma, ba-ba are the first sounds your baby can make. Repeating these helps your baby connect to his language, world, and to you!
- ★ Make a play date – Setting aside special time for the two of you lets him know he is special and that you'll be there for him.
- ★ Keep your promises – Your baby will learn from you. Teach him to trust by doing what you say you are going to do.
- ★ Play peek-a-boo – Doing this builds your baby's skills at communicating and expressing emotions.
- ★ Blocks, balls, cars and dolls – These can be played with in lots of different ways.
- ★ Build a tower - Babies will especially love knocking it down.
- ★ Be an actor – Read books using different voices. Your little one will love it!
- ★ Get down on the floor to play at baby's level.
- ★ Tell baby you love her.

BE A GOOD ROLE MODEL

Your baby learns by watching you.
